Dear Mr. Sellers,

I have to thank you for your letter of July

3rd.

I am sorry, but I can only endorse what

Mr. Phillips has said. You raised the matter when you were in this office and we were then quite definite that everybody who was going into the new show with you would not get a gratuity. This argument applies all the more forcibly to you, especially as the price quoted you was particularly low on account of your old associations with the Mill, and, further, as since the arrangement has been made you have been given odd bits of yarn of a great deal higher value than would be any gratuity which might otherwise have been granted to you.

Wishing you the best of luck in your venture and regretting that I am unable to be sympathetic to your present request,

I remain,
Yours sincerely,

E. B. Smith
